

Sign InNew User? Sign UpADVERTISEABOUT USCONTACTSEARCH

FRAME

THE GREAT INDOORS

HOME
MY FRAME
MAGAZINE
BOOKS
DESIGN AREA
STORE
HELP

News

Your Daily Dose Of Design

OCT 21 DOUBLE 00•09 BY CASE-REAL

Case-Real designed a shop located in Fukuoka, Japan, which gentle... More

SHOP

Peter Kostelov realized his home in Moscow based on his desire to... More

INSTALLATION

Professor Pia Ednie-Brown took 12 of her students to design Plast... More

PRODUCTS

Are you a student designer and would you like to be featured in a... More

For the inauguration of Studio O's new office, as we reported on... More

Design Of The Week

Frame's Favourite

FRAME'S GRAND STAND

MyDesigner is an attempt to individualize the process of branding and make shape more relate-able in identity-related products. This project experim... More

Cedric Flazinski
Netherlands

Are you a designer, architect or manufacturer? Submit your designs for free and get noticed in Frame's Design Directory.

UPLOAD YOUR DESIGN HERE

Design Directory

Browse, Search, Compare

Subscribe
TODAY

Sign Up For Newsletter

Submit

Material World 2 & Bright: The bare necessities for all professionals who work materials and light, now offered in a discounted set.

€ 70.00

More

Mark Magazine

News

Your Daily Dose Of Design

previous | next

HOUSE

OCT 19 METAL APARTMENT BY KOSTELOV

» Photo taken by Ziron Razutdinov.

» Peter Kostelov realized his home in Moscow based on his desire to 'create an indivisible architectural design', which resulted in a metal house without decoration.

» The home that Peter Kostelov realized for his personal use is based on the Russian architect's 'desire to create an indivisible architectural design'. For reasons of practicality, he omitted any sort of decoration, choosing instead to focus on functionality and a design that would 'unify all elements of the space'. Located in Moscow, Kostelov's apartment features walls clad in metal, part of a material palette that also includes natural cobblestone, brown cork tile and purpose-designed textile. Although most contemporary architects and interior designers have a tendency to remove the walls of an interior to create one spacious, open-plan area, Kostelov opted for a dwelling with many rooms: living room, bedroom, study, library, two closets, kitchen, bathroom and, for guests, a lavatory and shower. He lowered the ceiling to allow for the insertion of an entresol, which he uses for storage.

» Peter Kostelov

Shopping Cart
Empty

Related

» All News

» RSS Feed

» Current Issue

» Subscribe

Mark Magazine

Happy with Frame? Discover Mark, the architecture magazine by the makers of Frame.

» More